Then And Now

"The Boomin' Shoppe"

By Frances Paulette

As crowds of people lined the streets of Appomattox on Saturday to watch the parade go by, many of the ladies, both old and young, wore costumes reminiscent of an era long gone by. Then, as later in the day, and on Sunday as the throngs of people milled about enjoying the many things that went to make up a part of this fourth Annual Railroad Day, there were still to be seen many bonnets perched atop the heads of many lovely ladies.

I wonder, did you know - - - and I did not, until I was talking last week with two of our well-known and well-loved native Appomattox women, Mrs. H. G. Johnson, and Mrs. Rachel Lawson, that there was once on the Main Street of Appomattox in the early 1920's a business known as Virginia's Bonnet Shop.

The shop, located where Jeanne's Steak House is now situated, was owned and operated by Virginia Ferguson Henderson, Mrs. Henderson, the daughter of the late Senator and Mrs. S. L. Ferguson and sister of Mrs. Rachel Lawson sold ladies hats and other ladies ready-to-wear.

What made Virginia's Bonnet Shop special was that every time you went to look over the tempting "pretties" she offered for sale was that she greeted you with a smile from her wheel-chair. Mrs. Henderson, at approximately age nine months was striken with polio. Although paralyzed, Virginia, accompanied by her maid, attended school each day, graduating from Appomattox High School with honors. Virginia later married Daniel B. Henderson and they were the parents of one child. Mrs. Henderson, despite being paralyzed, led a full and happy life. She later moved to Richmond where she owned and operated from her home an antique shop. Members of her family who spoke of her ten years in Richmond, said she got to know more people in the ten-year span than many Richmonders had in a lifetime. Virginia's love of people drew people to her shop and one of Appomattox County's own writers, Louise Gills, wrote an article which was published in several magazines and a paperback entitled "She Didn't Surrender At Appomattox."

More Aid For Virginia Farmers

Another step to help Virginia farmers suffering their worst hay crop since 1966 was taken today when S. Mason Carbaugh, Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture and Commerce announced that the Department of Highways and Transportation will grant temporary permits for extra length trailer loads of hay shipped by truck in Virginia.

The Commissioner pointed out that this year's drought has cut feed crops for dairymen and livestock producers to the point that many are being faced with a critical feed situation. This year's hay crop is down almost one-fourth from 1975 production.

Commissioner Carbaugh said the temporary permits would be available immediately and would run through May 31, 1977. This will permit Virginia farmers affected by this year's drought to receive increased amounts of hay on each tractor-trailer shipment in the state and will help to bring about economics in transportation costs.

Under the permit the length of hay loads can be extended from six feet up to a maximum total length of sixty-one feet for tractor-trailer combinations (including the load.)

The Commissioner expressed his appreciation to Highway Department Officials for their understanding to the problem and their willingness to assist Virginia farmers during this time of need.

The fee for the temporary permit is $5.00 per trailer and is for the duration of the permit period. Anyone desiring a temporary permit may contact the Virginia Department of Highways and Transportation, Permit Section, (804) 786-2787, for assistance.

When you vote for Senator Byrd, you know what you're voting for!

For a lower cost of living through a lower cost of government
"What we don't need in Washington," Senator Byrd says, "are more big spenders in the Senate." He believes that the primary cause for inflation is the reckless spending of the federal government and resulting record deficits. "The huge and accumulated deficits," he says, "are mortgaging the future of our young people and forcing up interest rates.
"Inflation is a hidden and cruel tax which eats into every wage-earner's paycheck and every housewife's grocery dollar. It hits hardest those on fixed incomes and those in the lower and middle economic brackets.
"We will not get the cost of living under control until we get the cost of government under control," Harry Byrd continues, "and the place to start is in the high levels of government." He voted against increasing his own salary by opposing automatic cost-of-living increases for the Congress.

For freedom for Virginia's farmers
Knowing that adequate food production can only be achieved with a minimum of government control, Harry Byrd has voted to exclude small farms from oppressive OSHA regulations. He has also voted to strengthen beef markets, opposed an excessive tax increase on one of our leading farm products, and supported an increase in the federal estate tax exemption to encourage preservation of Virginia's family farms.
For strict, fair law enforcement
Harry Byrd supports the efforts of law officers to reduce crime, and he has voted for both the death penalty for violent federal crimes; and for mandatory sentences for "hard" narcotics pushers and for those convicted of federal crimes involving handguns. But he opposes additional federal gun controls, wide-scale domestic wiretapping and "no-knock" search and seizure laws as violations of your rights as a law-abiding citizen.

For government that serves the people
Harry Byrd believes that government should be responsive to the people; he also believes there is a distinct difference between helpful government leadership and disruptive government interference. To help reduce the mushrooming cost and power of the federal bureaucracy and make the government more responsive to the real desires of the people, Senator Byrd has introduced legislation requiring periodic review of more than 1000 federal agencies—and the elimination of those agencies that cannot justify their costs or their actions.
November 2, vote to keep the Virginia Viewpoint a major force in Washington—reelect a Virginian for Virginia!
